National Research Project to Accelerate Growth of Businesses Owned by Women of Color to Hold Forum in Chicago

Washington, DC – Chicago has been selected as the final of five cities for a national research study to identify obstacles to business growth faced by women business owners of color. The day-long research forum, to be held January 23rd, will be conducted by the Center for Women's Business Research and Babson College. The objective is to identify the barriers and challenges that women of color face in the pursuit of business growth and to create individual, community, and ultimately, national action plans to overcome those barriers. The research will culminate in a 2008 national conference where public- and private-sector policy recommendations generated by the research will be announced.

Women entrepreneurs who are African-American, Asian, Latina, and other ethnicities, who wish to grow their businesses to a higher level and help create local and national agendas that support businesses owned by women of color, must apply in advance to participate. Selection criteria include owning a business that is at least 50 percent women owned with annual revenues between $250,000 and $5 million. All types of industries are welcome. Women-of-color entrepreneurs who meet the research criteria and wish to participate should contact the Center for Women's Business Research at www.womensbusinessresearch.org or at 202.638.3060 ext. 725.

Bank of America is the city sponsor for the Chicago research forum which will be held at the Bank of America (231 S. LaSalle, 21st Floor) from 9am to 5pm. The Women's Business Development Center of Chicago is the city co-presenter. The forum will be followed by a reception attended by participants, guests, and executives from sponsoring corporations and organizations.

"As of 2006, there are 2.4 million businesses owned by women of color. They are starting businesses at a faster rate than all businesses but their firms are not achieving the same level of success when measured by revenues and employment," said Sheila Brooks, national spokesperson for this initiative and President and CEO of SRB Productions, Inc. "These businesses have great untapped potential for economic and social impact which can only be realized by clearly identifying their challenges and then developing targeted programs and policies to remove those barriers. The research participants will share their stories, develop personal and business action plans, learn how to grow their businesses from the proven strategies of others, and contribute to setting new community and national agendas that support growth."

Now in its third year, Accelerating the Growth of Businesses Owned by Women of Color continues to be funded by a prestigious consortium of corporate and association national sponsors, including Wal-Mart Stores/ Sam's Club, Inc.; Wachovia; UPS Capital; Wells Fargo & Company; American Airlines; IBM; MasterCard; Verizon; Time Warner; and PepsiCo.

Leading women business owner organizations and other non-profit organizations are also research sponsors. They are: the National Association of Women Business Owners (NAWBO); National Women's Business Council (NWBC); Women's Business Enterprise National Council (WBENC); and the Women Presidents' Organization (WPO).

"We are very pleased to participate in this research which will culminate in sharing the experiences and insight of women-of-color entrepreneurs with national policy makers," said Babson College associate professor Donna Stoddard. "We expect this research to create community and national agendas to foster the success of all women-of-color entrepreneurs."

The core of the project is five research forums bringing women of color entrepreneurs together to identify key issues. The first four forums were held in Atlanta, Georgia; Dallas, Texas; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and San Francisco, California. Babson College has developed two case studies for this research initiative, which exemplify the major areas of discussion.

Affiliate organizations that have joined the initiative to date include: Women's Leadership Exchange; America-China International Foundation; Association of Women's Business Centers; CARE; Center for Leadership and Civic Engagement of Spelman College; Georgia Women's Business Council; Women's Business Development Center of Philadelphia; Dallas/Fort Worth Minority Business Council and Las Comadres.

Corporate and association sponsorships for 2008 are still available.

Editor's Note: The following is a sampling of the comments of the participants in the first forums

"I thoroughly enjoyed every minute and expect to use the tools and methods expounded upon. Everyone was great. Carry on! You're doing a wonderful job. Easteller Bruihl, President, Star Reporting Service, Inc.

"I have been raving about the forum to anyone who will listen since I returned. As a woman of color, I felt heard, validated and inspired."

Lena West, Founder & CEO, xynoMedia Technology

"I have attended a few 'women's business owners' seminars, meetings, etc. and this was the most valuable one to me...So, thank you again for recognizing the need for this study." Conni Evans, President, ANCON

"As an African American woman and business owner, I found the conference truly enjoyable as well as intellectually stimulating. It was so great to hear women speak about their challenges and others advise on possible solutions." Jacquannette Lewis, Chief Operating Officer, Global Advertising 1st, Inc.

WINTER 2008 ISSUE OF CITY JOURNAL

Abu Dhabi: East Leans West
Judith Miller, City Journal, Winter 2008
(This piece is a NRO web brief, 1-14-08)
. . .Only two decades ago, few foreigners would have viewed this loose federation of seven independent sheikhdoms, strung out along the southeastern corner of the Persian Gulf, as a land of opportunity. But thanks to the world's fifth-largest reserves of crude oil and natural gas, an estimated $1 trillion of investment abroac and plans to spend at least $200 billion over the next decade on infrastructure and other grandiose projects in Abu Dhabi and Dubai, the two most dynamic emirates, the UAE has burst into the world's--and belatedly, America's--consciousness. . .

Jersey's Toll Tax
Nicole Gelinas, New York Post, January 14, 2008
New Jersey Gov. Jon Corzine's plan for toll hikes sets a dismaying precedent: Some of the take would indirectly fund past spending that has nothing to do with roads. Corzine's goals - to invest in infrastructure and to reduce debt - are worthy, but it's a bad idea to turn to toll payers to pay off non-road debt. . .

Cleveland suit: overlending as public nuisance

Posted by Walter Olson

You can't say we didn't warn you about the dangers in lawyers' efforts to develop elastic, inventive "public nuisance" theories for suing unpopular businesses (gunmakers, makers of lead paint in 1920, global warming contributors, etc.) And now, shortly after Baltimore's lawsuit (PDF) seeking recovery from subprime lenders for various sins and insults, the mayor of Cleveland has followed with a yet more absurd and yet more dangerous lawsuit. . .

It will be interesting to see who couldn't make it in for the already-scheduled 1:00 gavel time. She's full of bull. Just like she was last week on the fund raiser invitation. Just like she was on MatMaid "assistance", just like she was on telling reporters I was gone "for many weeks" at the beginning of last year's session, etc etc etc. She needs to be called on her lies.

Governor,

Bitney said they had a problem with it last week, but then Harris changed his mind and said 6:00 was o.k. In the meantime Bitney still sent the 7:00 invite to the Senate. That put this all in motion, because Lyda had all she needed for ammo. The question remains, why should you change your travel after 6:00 was already approved a month ago?

We NEVER refused to provide a reason for 6:00. When they asked, we told them. Bitney pretended he needed a reason for 6:00 because he thought it might make us sweat. He then admitted he knew about the graduation all along. He had told Tkacz early last week.

I've been consistent since last week (when Tkacz was the first one to say he knew about the graduation) that you had a flight to catch to go see your son graduate. I never said anything until it was obvious that the word was out.

The only real bad part of the story is the quote about the prime time slot. This was never a factor as far a I.was concerned. I'm not sure why that even came up. Never heard that was a consideration of ours. It seems to run counter to the explanation that we needed 6:00 in order for you to catch a plane.

Also says I "refused" to give a reason for wanting 6pm so both House and Senate said 7pm. Who "refused" to give reasons (unless Bitney is spreading this, to cover his butt for not working with his boss-Harris- on this back in December)?

Governor, All,

I just spoke with Ashley Reed and Kim Hutchinson (two of the three people who represented Gillam in our discussions, the 3rd being Atty Jeff Feldman). Neither knew who leaked the draft documents, although when I pressed them they agreed that it may have been Art Hackney, who works as Gillam's Public Relations' representative. I pressed them on this issue because over the weekend I had heard that Art Hackney told Rhonda Boyles about our discussions, and Rhonda immediately told a mining community rep. Ashley told me this morning he was asked by KTUU to comment on whether there had been "negotiations" and he refused to do so, stating he advised KTUU that his refusal to comment should not be construed as a confirmation nor a denial. He said that at that time KTUU was simply probing and didn't seem to know much and certainly didn't have a copy of the draft. Therefore he contends they got ahold of more info subsequently. At the end of our conversation Ashley told me that if we (the Administration) wanted him to make a statement to the press he would be happy to say whatever we liked, as long as it was "remotely like the truth". He restated his appreciation that we "gave them so much time and made a real effort". I told Ashley I would get back to him on this. When I told Ashley that the news reported that we approached them, Ashley agreed that is not how it occurred, nor was this ever about keeping issues from a vote of the people. Rather, it was looking for possible solutions to a perception problem, including Gillam's perception that Alaska's permitting process is inadequate. Or as Tom said to KTUU, we were looking for the "art of the possible" or "common ground". Tom also told KTUU. Lthis is what DNR does, regularly. We are geared to listen to Alaskans and try and resolve conflicts, whether they are on permitting, land management or some other issue. In this case Pebble and the initiatives are very important in the state. Both sides put problems, goals and solutions on the table looking for a resolution. In this case everyone should conclude one side asked for too much and one side wasn't willing to give more, so the discussions stopped".

Governor, if you think it would be helpful for Ashley to make a statement to the press tomorrow, please advise and I will work with Sharon and Joe to make it happen. Also, I am so sorry this effort has taken a negative path, as it was totally about seeing if we could make something helpful out of some problems.

Yikes- why did ktuu report that we're negotiating over pebble? I think they got it wrong - we know there's no negotiating. It's unfortunate that the report made it sound like we're thwarting the right of the people to speak/vote on this. They said we approached the environmental group to squash it.

Subject: 2nd Nikolski Fuel Crisis Update - January 14th, 2008

Dear All:

APIA, APICDA, and Delta Western are still working together to attempt a fuel delivery to Nikolski. The marine charter did not go this weekend, due to weather. The rest of the week does not look promising either, as hurricane force winds are expected tonight, with the tail end of the storm near the end of the week.

The earliest an air charter could make it would be Wednesday morning, weather permitting. Now that some of the heavy equipment has been repaired, the runway should be able to be kept cleared, but fuel is short for the heavy equipment too.

Nikolski has less than 9 drums in the tank. Heating oil is a priority, but without electricity, they won't have heat either.

A new update will follow upon new information, at least by Wednesday. Thank you for your attention and interest and please let me know if you need any more information.

MESSAGE:

Dear Ms. Palin,

I have been to your state two times now-- and I would like you to know the following:

1. It is a truly amazing state- your state does wonders for the Tourism Industry

2. Residents of Alaska praise your ability in promoting your State, utilizing your state's resources in allowing a great workforce opportunity.

These are important issues, as a resident of Michigan, these are areas we are doing poorly in. So, if you ever think of running for Governor in Michigan, you will have my vote-- I know that is most likely not going to happen-- however, I did want you to know I think you are doing a great job for your people.

Sincerely,

Melinda Smith

Hello all,

Hope everyone is having a great 2008! I wanted to see if you can pass on the word that MEDIAK is back and we're having an open house next Thursday, January 17 from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. The open house is a great chance for new students and their parents or guardians to see what MEDIAK is all about. Of course there will be FREE FOOD and a chance to see what the magazine, radio and video clubs are doing. Tell everyone to come by and have a snack and see what MEDIAK is producing. Once they're here, they'll be hooked. :o)
Quyanaqpak!!! Thank you very much!

What's the beef Fagan is supposedly making over my 6pm speech? AP told me Lyda is fussing about it, said she may not come, Harris (er, John Bitney) reportedly wants a detailed explanation. AP asked if I really had a plane to catch- (how would they even know this?!). I explained the speech has been set for a month-and-a-half, no one complained back then... and my flt to travel to attend my son's graduation into the Infrantry was made AFTER the speech time was set.

Tibbles told me she's threatening not to even show up because she doesn't like an opening-night, early State of State. He also told me Harris got grumpy (and petty) about it after talking to Lyda? Bizarre.

Russ hand-delivered them letters about the sppech weeks ago and no one said boo. How in the world do things like this become "an issue"? Like Sharon said - 6pm is prime time, it shows we're early and ready to help these folks do their 90-day business with no hesitation.

We wanted you to see the attached email and proposed ad from Defenders of Wildlife. As you will note, Defenders is contemplating a full blown advocacy campaign to foreclose aerial predator control of wolves and other animals if the purpose is to enhance game populations or sport hunting. Their bill would foreclose such predator control in Alaska and in other states, such as Wyoming and Idaho, where the practice is now being discussed.

Subject: Nikolski Fuel Crisis Update - January 14th, 2008

Dear All:

APIA, APICDA, and Delta Western are still working together to attempt a fuel delivery to Nikolski. The marine charter did not go this weekend, due to weather. The rest of the week does not look promising either, as hurricane force winds are expected tonight, with the tail end of the storm near the end of the week.

Nikolski estimates that the electricity should make it for a few days but have taken the last nine drums to the power plant. When the school is open and the clinic is heated by electric heaters, both generators are needed and the fuel usage can be as high as 150 gallons a day. Other homes out of heating oil are also heating with electricity.

Today, we are looking into an air charter, but this situation is bankrupting the community which will soon be without the jobs to run the community. The funding will only cover one or two more efforts. Let today's cold weather remind us how fortunate we are and how undeserving Nikolski is of this preventable situation.

A new update will follow upon new information, at least by Tuesday.

Thank you for your attention and interest and please let me know if you need any more information.

Sarah,

Please have ADF&G, Div. of Wildlife Conservaton Director Doug Larsen put a way to contact him on the website... Atleast a comment deposit on the web?

Also please have the Div. put where their funds come from on the web.

It would also be nice to quick link back to the state home page from there also.

It is hard to defend the management or use of the resoures without tools.
Thanks!...Robert

That's the simplist I can do.

Hey... Great job by the way, do not let the first wave of fatalists get you down.

MESSAGE:

Governor Palin:

Do you know what your Board of Game is up to? Below are some of the proposals on the docket for the next BOG meeting in Anchorage. These proposals will increase bag limits and mechanized access to bears and wolves by legalizing and hunting methods that have been illegal for many years and traditionally considered unethical. There is no biological need for any of these hunting methods. If you are as concerned about ethics in wildlife management as you are in state government in general you need to rein in your BOG or risk what is left of Alaska's reputation as an enlightened keeper of the people's wildlife.

Following are the Proposals:

Proposal #3 would expand the area where hunters can fly in and shoot black bears on the same day they are airborne. Currently, this is only allowed in limited "predator control" areas. This proposal further sanctions the use of bait or scent lures and allows hunters to shoot bears as close as 300 feet from their aircraft.

Proposal #40 would sanction the killing of mother bears and their cubs in various regions totaling over 60,000 square miles. This proposal lacks any biological justification and would undoubtely result in many orphaned cubs leading to their death by starvation.

Proposal #41 would sanction a practice known as "denning," which would allow the killing of wolf pups in their dens, an extremely unethical form of hunting that has been outlawed, with good reason, for many years. It would also extend wolf hunting season to May 31st, when pups are out of the den, and extend the bag limit to 10 wolves per day. It would also likely kill adult wolves, orphaning newborn wolf pups and condeming them to starvation.

Proposal #42 would permit the baiting of wolves statewide, a practice currently not allowed except when trapping. This would habituate wolves to seek out human food sources, creating obvious additional management problems.

Support Local High School and University Students by Sponsoring a Table for them to Attend to the 2008 Statewide Economic Forecast Luncheon

Dear WTCAK Members and Friends:

I hope that you have already made your reservations to attend the 2008 Statewide Economic Forecast Luncheon that takes place on Wednesday, 23 January 2008. This event has quickly become one of the most anticipated, largest attended business events in Alaska. It's a great way to start the New Year with information and analysis that you can use as you make your plans and strategies for 2008.

If you haven't reserved a table yet, please consider doing so today. While we want to accommodate everyone who would like to attend, space is limited and a week from today I cannot guarantee that there will be seating available.

I would also ask that you consider helping us to include as many High School and University students as we can by sponsoring a table for them. These young people represent the Alaskan leaders of tomorrow. This event is an excellent opportunity for them to learn about what drives the Alaska economy and how Alaska fits into the international picture.

If you've already made a table reservation, why not call and reserve a second table designated for the students? We'll give your company or organization special recognition from the podium during the luncheon and you'll be helping our local students to better understand the dynamics of the Alaskan economy.

If you haven't made your reservation yet, do so today and add a second table to support the students. I can tell you without hesitation that your support will be very much appreciated.

Click Here to learn more about this event.

Best Regards,

Greg Wolf

Executive Director

To make your table reservation today, please call WTCAK at 278-7233. We accept MasterCard, Visa, American Express and checks. You can also use the convenient registration form provided below and fax to WTCAK at 278- 2982.

Hi Sarah,

I hope you have time to read this in your busy schedule!

I am just writing to offer my congratulations on your being appointed Governor of Alaska. What a suprise when I opened my U of Idaho alumni magazine and found you in there! I haven't seen you since you graduated from the University of Idaho in '87 but always felt you were destined for something great. I lived in the Towers on the 9th floor, between Anne Moore (RA) and Stacia Crocker for that one year, studying my little heart out for my Architecture and Interior Design degrees. It was so fun. I lost the pictures, but in my memory I do recall going to the mall before Christmas to sit with Santa (you, Stacia, Julie Rose and I) and the Neely Hall Dress-up Dinner. I graduated in '89 and '90 and live in the Sun Valley area still married to that Marc guy I was seeing (also an Architect) working and raising two kids.

Best Wishes,

Jill Fehr Corney

Don't even worry about it! I heard the same thing and think it's absolutely ridiculous--and so does everyone I've talked to. She looks horrible and petty. Your going to watch your son graduate from boot camp, you've been more than accommodating w/ the Legislature. If Lyda doesn't show up it would be political suicide...on second thought...out with the old and in with the new.

That Lyda! Ugh...

Tibbles told me she's threatening not to even show up because she doesn't like an opening-night, early State of State. He also told me Harris got grumpy (and petty) about it after talking to Lyda? Bizarre.

Russ hand-delivered them letters about the sppech weeks ago and no one said boo. How in the world do things like this become "an issue"? Like Sharon said - 6pm is prime time, it shows we're early and ready to help these folks do their 90-day business with no hesitation.

What's the beef Fagan is supposedly making over my 6pm speech? AP told me Lyda is fussing about it, said she may not come, Harris (er, John Bitney) reportedly wants a detailed explanation. AP asked if I really had a plane to catch- (how would they even know this?!). I explained the speech has been set for a month-and-a-half, no one complained back then... and my flt to travel to attend my son's graduation into the Infrantry was made AFTER the speech time was set.

Sen. Green:
You are already aware of our dislike for your political moves. But this mean spirited move against our Governor is the latest of hateful moves. Track is her son who joined the US Army to defend our nation. H can you live with yourself closing her out so that she misses the flight to see him graduate? You have hac plenty of prior notice and ignored it just like everything else you cannot face in a fair way.
Governor Palin is the governor, like it or not. Act your age. There is hope among a lot of people that yo not run again.
